

Topic	Offerings	Description	Contact Information	Frequency/Specific Dates	Curriculum Development
Office of Faculty
Miscellaneous	Faculty Orientation	All faculty are encouraged to attend the annual day-long faculty orientation, typically offered in early October. The program features practical, need-to-know information delivered by our leaders and experts in an engaging format that benefits both new full- and part-time faculty members as well as faculty members with longer tenure at Hopkins. A wide variety of topics is covered, from how to succeed at Hopkins, to how to progress in your research and clinical careers, to getting promoted, educating students, and so much more. Leadership guides new faculty through typical problem-based case studies so they would be familiar with Hopkins policies on professionalism, compliance, and integrity. Table talks over lunch feature topics such as technology, writing grants, working in research, diversity and inclusion, establishing good writing habits through writing accountability groups (WAGs), professional development, women in science, and exploring Baltimore.	Charmaine Clarke (cclark30@jhmi.edu)	Annually, Oct	